Language placed in quotation marks in the order that does not appear in the cited opinion, or is materially reworded. (Minor apostrophe/ellipsis differences in accurate quotes are excluded.)

Manzano v. State, 282 Ga. 557, 559 (2007) · p.15

FABRICATED QUOTE

"A charge on justification is proper where the defendant contends that his actions were legally authorized and necessary to prevent a crime or injury."

Does not appear in the cited opinion — remove or correct.

Durden v. State, 327 Ga. App. 173, 179 (2014) · p.15

FABRICATED QUOTE

"[a]lthough the defendant requested a charge on citizen's arrest, the trial court properly charged justification, which covered the substance of his defense. A trial court is not required to give redundant instructions."

Does not appear in the cited opinion — remove or correct.

Lang v. State, 344 Ga. App. 623, 627 (2018) · p.15

FABRICATED QUOTE

"[a] citizen's arrest defense is not required when a justification charge sufficiently encompasses the defendant's theory of the case."

Does not appear in the cited opinion — remove or correct.

Tarvestad v. State, 261 Ga. 605 · p.31

FABRICATED QUOTE

"but there must be a legitimate basis for the defense."

Does not appear in the cited opinion — remove or correct.

Virgil v. State, 227 Ga. App. 96 · p.31

FABRICATED QUOTE

"but there must be a legitimate basis for the defense."

Does not appear in the cited opinion — remove or correct.

Smith v. State, 314 Ga. App. 583, 588 (2012) · p.27

REWORDED QUOTE

"a question of trial strategy"

"so patently unreasonable that no competent attorney would have chosen it."

Substance is supported, but the quoted words differ from the opinion — re-quote verbatim or drop the quotation marks.

Note: Taylor v. State also carries a "fabricated quote" flag in the raw data, but it was checked against the wrong opinion and is excluded here; the same sentence is verified as accurate where the order quotes it via Hargrave v. State.
